Tuesday Bedtime Stories & Prayers for Children

“Shelter in Place” has caused all churches to move their activities online. Sunday School for our kids became a big challenge, and we started thinking about how we can use current resources to offer a program for children during the week. With the encouragement of a pastor in Canada, and after the concerted prayers of brothers and sisters who felt the calling of children’s ministry, our Tuesday Bedtime Stories and Prayers program was born.

We invite families with kids between 4 to 8 to join us at 8:00 pm every Tuesday night for a fun session of story telling that incorporates both literary charm and meaningful teaching.

“I read with my son every night during his childhood and those were some of the best memories of motherhood. Besides teaching language skills, the bonding opportunity is precious, and you will reap so many great teachable moments when you pick good books that provide meaningful contexts”

-- Betty Yu, Mother

“I just watched your storytelling video of Zachary and the Great Potato Catastrophe, and I couldn’t stop grinning from start to finish. You really are such a creative team! Well done!”

“Shelter in Place” has caused all churches to move their activities online. Sunday School for our kids became a big challenge, and we started thinking about how we can use current resources to offer a program for children during the week. With the encouragement of a pastor in Canada, and after the concerted prayers of brothers and sisters who felt the calling of children’s ministry, our Tuesday Bedtime Stories and Prayers program was born.

With God’s grace, our brother Joseph applied his many years of experience and accumulated skills in publishing to prepare our animated stories, while sister Betty searched for suitable stories with teachable messages and a theme song to match. Finally, our program was launched in August 2020.

We also have brothers and sisters taking part in the role play of voice over for various characters in the book, bringing the written text to life with intonations and emotions. Our objective is not only to present a lively story to our children every Tuesday, but to impart to them the important message of the story and guide them with Biblical truth. Each child’s positive response to the story is our best reward. In fact, as we prepare each story, our hearts are filled with the simple pleasure of a child-like wonder as we relearn the valuable messages of each book.

We invite families with kids between 4 to 8 to join us at 8:00 pm every Tuesday night for a fun session of story telling that incorporates both literary charm and meaningful teaching.
